

Media Release

The Barossa Council

25 January 2019

Community can have a say on Stockwell masterplan

People are being asked to comment on a vision for the future use Stockwell Recreation Park as part of The Big Project.

The Barossa Council has released a draft masterplan for the precinct which seeks to enhance spaces and facilities for community and recreation use.

Council is asking for community feedback on the concepts, which include:

- Upgraded changerooms including female facilities
- Second oval for additional sports and sporting overflow
- Enhanced spectator viewing
- Outdoor fitness stations and bmx track

Community consultation will run from 30 January until 1 March 2019 and people can make comment in a variety of ways, including at Angaston Show on the weekend of 23-24 February or at a community drop-in session at Stockwell Hall on 5 February from 5-7pm.

Manager Community Projects Rebecca Tappert said Stockwell plays an important role as the region's northern home for cricket and regional-level artificial turf hockey pitch.

"But the park is so much more, offering community spaces for organised and informal gatherings and outdoor spaces for family and community use," she said.

"That's why we're seeking community input, to ensure future facilities at the park continue to meet the needs of this growing community."

Details on providing feedback and the information sessions are available at ourbetterbarossa.com.au or see Council's facebook page for updates. People can also make written submission via barossa@barossa.sa.gov.au

Ends

For more information contact Communications and Engagement Officer Heidi Helbig on 8563 8428.

premium wine food tourism heritage lifestyle community